Multiple Sclerosis (MS) low cost, safe and effective drug free treatment.

August 10th, 2014

The CCSVI (chronic cerebral spinal venous insufficiency) Liberation angioplasty procedure has proven to be safe, affordable and effective drug free treatment that reduces and sometimes eliminates the common multiple sclerosis symptoms like anxiety, balance and coordination problems, bladder dysfunction, cognitive dysfunction, constipation, depression, dizziness and vertigo, emotional changes, fatigue, sexual dysfunction, speech and voice disorders among others. Clinics of the Heart has performed close to 700 CCSVI angioplasty procedures on as many multiple sclerosis diagnosed patients from Canada and the United States. After administering a balloon venoplasty to clear the blockage, most patients' symptoms abated, many times dramatically. Since 2010 thousands of MS patients have travelled abroad to receive the CCSVI treatment which is not available in Canada nor is approved by the FDA in the U.S. most have reported improvements. Still, most neurologists who are the "traditional" self appointed MS gatekeepers, dismiss the CCSVI hypothesis and chalk up any treatment benefits to the "placebo effect".

It has been found that CCSVI is associated with MS and is a contributing agent in the progression of the disease. Dr. Rafael Moguel, renown interventional cardiologist since 1991 is the director of Clinics of the Heart and is the head of the cardiology department at the modern Costamed Hospital on Cozumel Island, Mexico. Mexico's most skilled medical professionals staff Clinics of the Heart, the most advanced techniques and equipment and the legendary warmth and hospitality of the Mexican people welcome patients. To top it off, patients enjoy the wonderful attractions of the Maya Riviera, White powder sandy beaches, calm turquoise waters of the caribbean, cool breezes are the perfect environment to convalesce. The best coronary care by top cardiology professionals.
